

MDI to Exhibit at India Homeland Security Conference

San Antonio, Texas, USA, 4 October 2009

MDI is pleased to announce that we will have a substantial presence at INDESEC, India's homeland security conference. MDI will have one of the largest booths at the exhibition, will have a prominent speaking engagement on Network Centric Operations and is a Silver Sponsor of the conference.

"We have a significant foundation in India and have worked closely with representative groups under the INDESEC charter," stated Swaraj Bontula, MDI's Chief Executive Officer. "INDESEC is our first opportunity to broadcast the MDI message to the entire Homeland Security market," he continued.

MDI's marketing message is centered around the delivery of command and control and incident management solutions and our engineering teams have been on the ground backing it up.

The Indian homeland security market is one of the largest in the world, approaching US$8 billion, covering critical infrastructure, border, maritime and transportation security programs. We have been meeting with departments within many of these verticals and have been providing guidance in system designs, specification generation and proposal efforts.

Also at the MDI booth will be partners L-3 GS&ES (Global Security & Engineering Solutions) and Vindicator, both similarly focused in these verticals, alternating support and leadership on various opportunities and initiatives. MDI will also be displaying our new line of IP Open Architecture Video (OAV) solutions, which we will soon make available in the US and the Middle East.
